Missouri Weekly Hay Summary

Much of the states grain crops have managed to be harvested now with only 20 percent of both beans and corn still standing. This has allowed for some farmers to become a bit more interested in gathering up any needed hay for winter. Many farmers however have large stocks on hand and will wait till further into the feeding season. Most hay that is moving currently is more in the gooseneck loads rather than semi loads. Hay demand is light to moderate, supply is heavy and prices steady to weak.
