Missouri Weekly Hay Summary - Week ending 1/01/2010

Farmers had a difficult week battling all the winter ingredients such as cold, snow, ice and wind. Some areas mostly to the north and west were hit hard with up to a foot of snow and winds resulting in major drifting. Farmers to the south east also faced problems, but slightly warmer temperatures resulted in flooding for much of that area on the days around Christmas. Most farmers were feeding at peak winter levels putting out as much hay as they will any single day throughout the feeding season. Hay prices are steady, demand light to moderate, and supply is heavy. Hay movement was basically at a standstill due to poor travel conditions in the country.

Missouri Department of Agriculture has a hay hotline available for both buyers and sellers.
